Julie Bond is a Senior Lecturer in Archaeology. Her field research focuses on North Atlantic settlements such as Old Scatness, Jarlshof and the Orkney Gateway to the Atlantic project (with Steve Dockrill) and the Faroese Heart of the Atlantic project (with other NABO colleagues). She has also worked with Shetland Amenity trust as excavation director of the Viking Unst project. Her lab based work concentrates on plant and animal remains to investigate aspects of change, intensification and stability in the subsistence base of settlements.
